The Pig for the South.

Black or slate-colored pigs are free-st from skin diseases in hot climates. The choice is practically between the Essex and Berkshire for males with es. Physicians' prescriptions accurately which to improve the native stock of compounded. hardy grubbers or the root-or-die va-Those who have tried the former have been delighted at first, but after a few years begin to recall with longing the lean hams and thin but solid and flivorous bacon of the old race horse breed. The trouble with the Essex pigs for the South is of course, like them. The side fat is superb, and so is the leaf lard, and so far the breed is all that could be desired,; but the hams and shoulders are too fat for profit, and the ham is not marbled with fat like the Berkshires. These (the Berks) are much more enterprising, more wide awake, less easily controlled, but good foragers. Their grades are a wonderful improvement upon the original stock, may be made very fat, and yet, the proportion between fat and lean in the hams, shoulders and side pork or becon is such as to develope and preserve the excellen cies of the meat. The hams are large and rich and juicy with diffused fat. Berkshires are not quite so easily fattened when penned and fed as the Essex grade, but take much better care of themselves in the woods, and when penned for fattening, may be finished off with half the feed the "original land pikes" would require. With many Northern and Western breeders the Essex is a more profitable pig than the Berkshire, because his nature leads him to take little exercise, so that all he eats goes to flesh and fat. To Agents and Clubs Respiration, which, if rapid, reduces fat greatly, is with him never accelernted by moving about, and with nienty of feed, the sole burden of life is to digest it. This breed is pre-eminent among the black breeds, and excelled by none as fat produce as.—[American Agriculturist.

ABOUT SWEEPING. - Nothing seems stal men. more rare than to find a person who understands the philosophy of sweep-ing properly. Almost overy one, on beginning to sweep, opens the doors and windows with the avowed purpose of "letting the dust blow out." course, some dust blows out, but at the same time more dust is raised up in the air from the floor and carried into every crevice, hitherto clean perhaps. That this is wrong all well-trained housekeepers know. The air should That this is wrong all well-trained housekeepers know. The air should be kept as still as possible, and the broom moved near the floor with a light brushing motion until all the dirt is collected and carried away. Then open doors and windows as much as you please to let the dirt blow out. Houses swept in this manner always have a more tidy appearance than others, the carpets are not prematurely worn out, and everything filled with dirt that belongs to the dust-pan.
